HOME RULE PAKE

Ng Mon War, a name to conjure with in the political game nine or ten years ago, who seemed to be some involved in all manner of troubles, both as a ranner for prominent lawyers and as a would-be politician, is back in Honolulu after an absence of six years, spent mainly in China,

Mon War, as he was generally called, was a Beau Brummel among the Chinese, as dapper as a college grad, despite the fact that he wore a queue. He still sticks to it. His reappearance in Honolulu has been something of surprise to his old-time friends.

But he is not here for long, for he intends leaving in about a month for the mainland and will spend considerable time in traveling over the United States, visiting Washington and New York, in order to see what a real New York, in order to see what a real Richardson, Miss M. Cutler, Miss down on Wall street.

He was admitted to the bar of Honolulu in 1901, at the time so many politicians and legislators were given the right to practise in the lower

In 1902 he was induced by the Home Raiers to join their party and one of the humors of that memorable campaign was Mon War. He made stump office by the Home Rulers, this being done because Mon War was supposed to be able to swing the entire Chinese vote. Two years later be aspired to be a member of the house of represen-thtives, but at that time the Home

In view of the present situation in Europe and the Franco-German-Spanish embroglis over the Moroccan ques tion the readiness of the British fleet for instant action is said to be acting as a great deterrent to precipitate action on the part of any of those concorned. In former days the threat of mobilization was the final ultimatum to a foreign power that Great Britain the fixing of a price level for sugar. would strike unless her rights were in fact, Mr. Parsons testified, there is respected. That speech decided the Fashoda affair and Marchand was ordered to accept Lord Kitchemer's polite invitation to haul down the French flag over the fort at Fashoda.

Today there is no need to order mobilization, for the fleet, that is the fighting line, is mobilized and the or-ders would be for action not prepar-

The Business of Each Captain.

It is said to be a rule in the ser vice that each ship marks the ship of its class belonging to one or other of the powers who might be possible enemies. Thus the business of each captain is to know at any time during the day or night where his opponent is to be found. He is kept in constant touch or wireless from the Admiralty with any movement of any ship in any foreign port. The signal for action means that he seeks out that ship and destroys her, or bottles her up. It is no business of his what other ships are doing. When the time comes, he knows where his quary is and marks her down.

The increase in the German navy has necessitated the marking of more ships of at least equal fighting power and the concentration of the vessels in home waters. This explains what is meant by the two-power standard which necessitates the marking of all the ships of any possible combination of two foreign powers, .

Prepared for War.

That Great Britain today is not preparing for war but is prepared is certain. The fact that Mr. Lloyd George in his speech yesterday to the from a prepared manuscript, a thing most unusual for Mr. George, who is one of the finest of extempore speakers, has excited much comment. The domestic situation is attracting so much attention at the momen that foreign affairs are upt to be over shadowed, but it is evident, in view of the readiness of the fleet and the care with which Mr. George spoke, that the government is fully awake to its responsibilities. To compare Mr. George's speech of last night to his speeches at the time of the Boer war is almost as helpful as to compare the Mr. Burns of today with the Mr. Burns of Trafalgar Square,

MADERO MAY REMOVE AMERICAN DIRECTORS

MEXICO, July 14 .- That Henry W. Taff and W. B. Ryan, general manager of the Tehuanteper National Builway, will be removed from the board of directors of the American-Hawniian Steamship Company is the statement that comes from a high Madero source.

The Maderos have alleged that there is graft in the Tehuantepec concession granted to Lord Cowdray. There is a community of interest between the Tehuantepec and the American-Ha-waijan line. The Moxican government owns nearly a million dollars' worth of American Hawaiian stock, and Taft and Ryan represent this stock on the Loard. The Madoros, who propose to investigate all the Lord Cowdray concessions in Mexico, want a government representative on the steamship board friendly to their intermits.
